

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Holding Time

On September 11, 2021, a group of artists who were children in proximity to the World Trade Center twenty years ago will present "Holding Time" at 412 West 13th St. The show examines the psychological afterlife of 9/11 as it has been mediated, consciously and unconsciously, in works that participants made in the intervening period, ranging from photographs taken on 9/11/01 to sculpture made in recent years. The self-organized show aims to challenge the bellicose narratives proffered by adults around 9/11, offering instead moments of open-endedness and intimacy in relation to events that are, in many ways, unfinished.

As part of the show, the group asks visitors to bring an object that shows how they have made sense of 9/11 to help build a photographic public counter-archive of the event.
